So? did you figure out anything?
Yeah

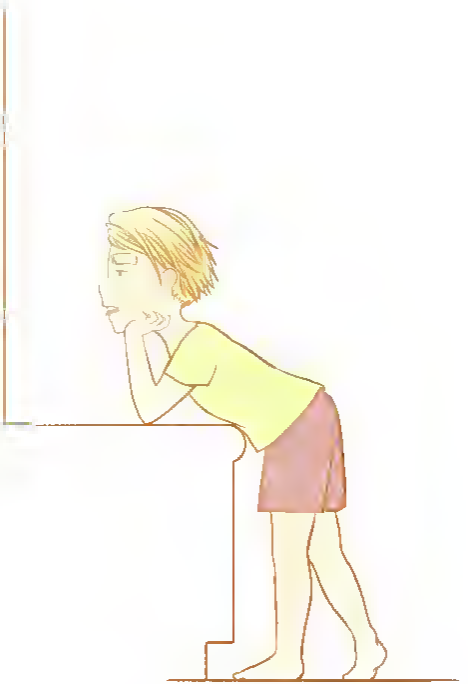
(Why would god willingly become human?)

(But then why tell me I'm God? That seems unnecessary)

(Maybe I'm just here to admire how awesome I actually am)

Just Ask Yuli

by Yulius Efferven



(Naaaaahhh...)

(Afterall being human isn't so bad)

This is a work of fiction any resemblenace to existing persons real or otherwise is purely coincidental

I'm incredibly good looking

(Perhaps God wants to know what being human is like)

-authors note-

Hello Again!

This week I thought I'd tell you a bit about myself, (not too much though hehe)

I first started publishing my comics online at the end of September last year (2014) before that I was doing a number of odd jobs after graduating university in 2013 with a Masters in Architecture

It was a difficult and scary choice to quit everything else I was doing and pursue something one might call a dream and I still have a lot to learn and to improve on. Stories have always been a passion of mine from a long time ago, and they have brought to me more than I could describe. To me, this is my way of giving back and perhaps it was both love and luck that I have learned to draw well enough to turn my ideas into comics.

A few of you have asked why I decided to draw Just Ask Yuli, and how I came up with the idea.

Just ask Yuli is the second story of three that I've officially published since starting out. The other two (unfinished and current on hiatus) are published on Tapastic.

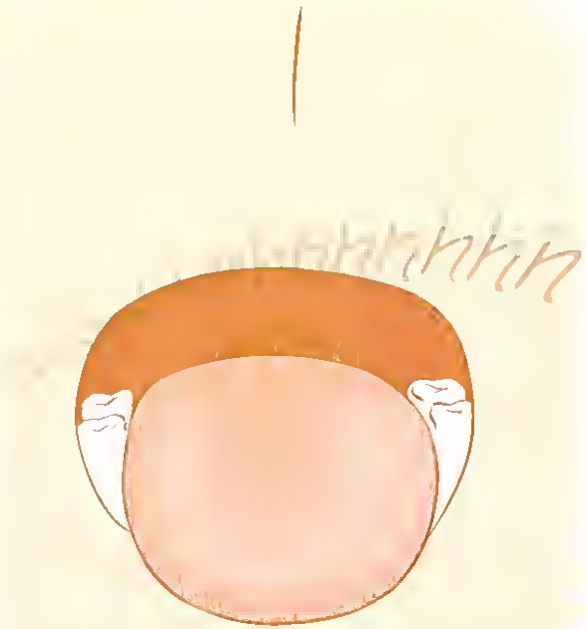
I came up with the idea of Just Ask Yuli at first because I was considering drawing a slice of life comic after seeing the success of many others. In the end I couldn't bring myself to draw a story completely devoid of a plotline so it has become a hybrid

The situations and stories are based on many of my own experiences and conversations. I want to ask difficult questions out loud here that I often wondered about but had a hard time actually voicing to anyone. I'm sure some of you have felt the same

I hope that like in this comic, all of you can feel free to ask those strange, awkward, questions about life because that's how we find out the answers

-Yuli

(Is there something humans can do that God can't?)



(Would he understand humans if he stayed as god?)

(And being god might get boring after a while)

(Do I have to do something?
Like preach to people, or help them?)

Hurry up already!
Alright, alright. I'm just reflecting like you told me to.